

Nicolas Cage stars as a 14th century knight in an over-the-top Black Plague drama – think Monty Python crossed with knockabout Hammer horror, add a dash of cut-price Tolkien to the mix and you're not far off the mark. It's creaky, predictable and frequently idiotic but somehow this just makes it all the more enjoyable.

